Anthony Edwards of TV’s ER and over 20 feature films will executive produce the documentary film, Searching for Home: Coming Back from War. Eric Christiansen of E C Productions will direct and edit the new film. The New York Times called Eric’s last film, Homecoming: A Vietnam Vets Journey, “Eric Christiansen’s’ surpassingly worthy and touching film.” Bruce Spears will be producing the film with Dr. Jeremy Crosby psychologist, Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) expert and author of the groundbreaking book, “A Mind Frozen in Time: A PTSD Recovery Guide,” as clinical consultant.

Searching for Home: Coming Back From War is an unflinching, emotionally involving, extremely personal look at veterans returning from war and their search for the “home” they left behind, physically, mentally and spiritually. From World War II, Korea and Vietnam to the modern day conflicts, Searching for Home chronicles the trials of assimilating back into civilian life. A multi-generational tribute, Searching for Home honors all of the men and women that have left home, only to return to new and difficult challenges as profoundly changed people.

Edwards is inspired by the change and healing Searching for Home: Coming Back From War can initiate. Edwards says of the films director, Eric Christiansen, “Eric is a film maker whose work I have know for many years. He tells stories from his heart using the tools that come from his intelligence and his great abilities with the craft.” Edwards continues, “This film has the potential to reach millions, enable many to heal and provide a catalyst for hope and change. It is my privilege to play a key role in this worthy project.”

“It is through the personal truth of each soldiers journey that Searching for Home: Coming Back From War will produce awareness then eventual healing and hope.” Comments Christiansen, “It is important this film is more then entertainment that it becomes a vehicle for social change with a focus on healing and hope.”

American Public Television will then distribute to public television for a 3 year run. Extensive outreach will also be produced to carry the message beyond the screen and into the community using many mediums including; televised townhall meetings, printed material and association with local agencies. A special one-night theatrical event on Veterans day is also being planned, Searching for Home: Coming Back From War is now actively seeking distributors and/or corporate underwriters.
